A Familiar Tone

Mr. Hoover says President Roosevelt has been "sticking pins in tigers all over the world." Meaning that he wrote notes to Hitler, Mussolini and Khrushchev urging them to not "make war" but to "make peace." Does anyone not smitten with election fever imagine Mr. Hoover when he was President would he not do the same things if the same circumstances had arisen? The man who told the German governor of Belgium to "go to Hell" wasn't exactly pussy-footing.

At Baltimore Mr. Willkie predicted that if Roosevelt is re-elected the United States may expect war by April 1st, 1920. The day before Mr. Roosevelt had repeated at Boston what he had said on many former occasions, that the United States would not start its leadership against any power for war "unless attacked." Does Mr. Willkie think he wouldn't go to war if the United States were attacked? Nobody would believe that.

It is no business of Canadian what politicians in the United States say about each other, unless Canadian affairs are directly affected. But there is nothing to prevent them replying that political controversies in the republic are not always conducted on a higher plane than in Canada.

Athens and Rome

This may be Athens has not been bombed. This may be Rome has not been bombed. Perhaps before these words are in print Mr. Duce's army may have looted a city and stood on the ruins. It is not surprising to hope the restraint to be of a settlement to spare the city because of its antiquities to ancient Greece civilization; that it would be spared because it is the dwelling place of a half-million people, and of only minor importance as a military center, cannot be supposed.

Signer Mussolini may not be greatly interested in early Greek culture; he shows little evidence of appreciating culture of any kind. But he can hardly be ignorant of the practical advantages which come to the whole Mediterranean area because countless people in all lands journey through in peace and safety. But he can hardly be ignorant of the practical advantages which come to the whole Mediterranean area because countless people in all lands journey through in peace and safety.

For that reason, if for no better, it can be hoped the bombs will keep clear of the Greek capital. The world is weary of the destruction of those two cities, and if one is destroyed the other assuredly will be. In particular Italy and Greece cannot afford to lose the stream of free money that pours into those countries every year in peace, brought and left there because of the relief of the Greek government. The future would be left there because of the relief of the Greek government. The future would be left there because of the relief of the Greek government.

Hands Off the Dardanelles? The invasion of Greece was a "feeler" to see how Russia would react to an Axis drive against the Dardanelles. ident in the "total" war Herr Hitler is waging at sea. The incident is discussed only in details. The ship was sunk, as scores of others have been sunk, hundreds of miles from land. Those of the crew who were fortunate—unfortunate—enough to get into the little boat were fired on, then left to die of torture or drown if the boat was swamped. How many went down to the ship the dispatch does not say, probably a score or more. At that the number of men murdered—for that is the only term to apply to what was done to those who have perished when larger vessels were sent to the bottom with the same callous indifference to the fate of their human freight.

Canadians as they read this story must have felt a thrill of satisfaction that they are doing what they can to stop this inhuman business. It is not with any other purpose; it is intended to bring about the defeat of the enemy. Sinking the ship may perhaps satisfy the public mind. But in what way was any military aid served by turning these men adrift in an open boat in mid-Atlantic, or by machine-gunning them as they rowed away? It was sheer, purposeless, deliberate savagery.

Mr. Houdé's supporters in a Montreal meeting-place bowed disapproval when they learned that Camille could run for mayor because he is in an internment camp. They are not very conscious of Fascist Italy. Signer Mussolini names the mayors of the cities, says who may and who may not run for a public office, says who is to be arrested and puts his opponents in jail. Do the Montreal Fascists think he should change his ways? They might tell him so.

Mr. R. S. Woodworth has resigned from the leadership of the C.C.F. party, because of health, and because his pacifist view did not meet the approval of the party. He deserves it and will have the sympathy of the public, who will hope that it may involve nothing more serious than a slowing of the pace. For his pacifism, in view of the rampant barbarism that is stalking through Europe, plus the nearest approach to sympathy that people generally will find possible.

Looking Backward From the Bulletin Files 1890—50 Years Ago

Guy C. Pinney, an old time resident of British Columbia, and now one of the influential citizens of Seattle, in declining the Democratic nomination for senator, confided his letter "My resignation as senator and everyone who knows me says G. C. Pinney is a pretty good fellow; the more we see of him the better we like him. But before the campaign was ended if carried on, the Seattle papers would declare my old father a liar and a murderer. He would be hung for murder. There would be six dead Seattle editors and I would be in the penitentiary instead of in the senate. Those with many other considerations, contrary to the opinion of the nomination."

There is a growing feeling that Churchill will get a reprieve. If not nomination of a Senator. A letter has been published in the papers which purports to have been written by the man who murdered Benoit, Churchill has written his autobiography and sold it to the Toronto Mail.

From The News Side Glances

By Harold L. Weir

Other news papers in trivialis beside the fact that tomorrow is election day in the United States. Strangely enough, the vast importance of this event is not determined so much by actual circumstance and circumstance as by the significance that it has been wifely or ignorantly attached to it by propaganda in totalitarian Europe.

Slight though the difference may be now between the foreign policies of President Roosevelt and Mr. Willkie, there state undoubtedly be some marked divergence in actual practice.

While we do not doubt that Mr. Willkie would give just as enthusiastic and ready material support to Britain as Mr. Roosevelt does, he might be slower or more unwilling to grasp the necessity for physical intervention in the eventuality of war. He would be, in the bow of the Pacific.

We do not for one moment allege that this probable difference on the part of Mr. Willkie would be dictated by any dilatory to the cause of democracy nor any ill-will towards the belated democratic nations. It would be more the product of a natural inclination to delicate international conditions.

In other words, Mr. Roosevelt would sit down again to the symphony of state with the touch of a highly trained mallet. With all the good will and natural ability in the world, Mr. Willkie could sit down with the clumsy touch of the tyro.

For this reason alone, and certainly for personal ones, the people of Canada and probably the people of Britain would prefer, if it were not discourteous to evince a preference in so domestic a matter, the election of Mr. Roosevelt.

There is one thing, however, that we are likely to find in the excitement of a political battle. And that is that no matter what the outcome of the American presidential may take tomorrow, they themselves will still be the same people, at heart, as they have been for the past century, the same people they will be the election years of 1924 and 1928.

No amount of balloting will effect any essential change in them. No amount of change wrought in their intellectual or spiritual substance overnight.

What the people may do tomorrow after the distractions of the most bitter campaign in many years can not alter the fact that they are still the same people. They are not Americans, they are Canadians, and who so high-mindedly pursued a never-ending quest to sympathy that people generally will find possible.

If the Americans were treated with respect and unkindly of their world responsibilities, they would have shirked those responsibilities in London's day and in the future of 1917.

But the fact that they did not shirk those responsibilities in London's day and in the future of 1917. But the fact that they did not shirk those responsibilities in London's day and in the future of 1917.

However, the United States may talk and promise and grumble, but it is not to be taken into account. It is not to be taken into account. It is not to be taken into account.

The factor, then, that makes tomorrow's election supremely important is not what it actually means, but what Germanized Europe thinks it means.

The finer nuances of public feeling and public opinion are quite beyond the conception of a totalitarian mind. It is not to be taken into account. It is not to be taken into account.

They can possibly understand why, if Mr. Willkie opposes Mr. Roosevelt, the friend of the United States should be, by inference, a bitter foe of Britain.

Being designing tricksters themselves, they are thoroughly convinced that the election of Mr. Willkie is a step towards further aid to Britain for the purpose of becoming president.

That may be good logic, of a kind. But these belligerent totalitarians do not know that when democracy came in, logic went out—and that democracy saves miraculously able to endure the logic.

The plain fact is that, if Mr. Willkie were tomorrow, every sinking little ship in the world would be sinking. It is not to be taken into account. It is not to be taken into account.

There is no time for Mr. Willkie to give a word of advice. The need for a practical hand is now.

There is no time for Mr. Willkie to give a word of advice. The need for a practical hand is now.

Looking them Over

JACK KELLY

One Year Later

LAST fall I wrote a column about Bob Fritz, the theme of which was whether or not this ball-playing paragon of the gridiron would someday become as good a coach as he was a player. Today I take a lot of pleasure in writing another chapter on that subject under the heading "One Year Later."

A year ago some of the men behind commercial football in this city were developing doubts as to whether Fritz was in the same class as a coach as he was undoubtedly as a player and it was this that provoked the comment.

There was a group that contended that Fritz was too wrapped up in the game, too enthusiastic and too able himself to be a good coach. They argued that Fritz expected his men to do what only he could himself, that he became so engrossed in the game that he couldn't bring cold, tactical reasoning to bear like Reg Theobald does, for example. Everyone gave Bob credit for being the greatest playing leader in the west, but they felt that his love of smashing into the thick of battle himself was robbing the club of proper direction from the bench.

Personally I felt that so much fine and genuine enthusiasm must be the unquestioned knowledge that the game was almost certain to result in him becoming a great coach, but I argued that it would take time for the transition from coach trooper to bench general.

Saturday the Golden Bears supplied the answer. I have been waiting for Saskatchewan Huskies gave the Bears their first major test and the Albertans rolled up a record over the western intercollegiate football over these latter rivals that they have been unable to win a single game in six years.

Bob Fritz didn't sit on the Alberta bench to direct the Bears—he probably never will be able to still for more than a minute or two as any bench during a game—but he handled the team with the precision of a crack general.

I don't believe that any worthwhile comparison of ability can be made between football teams that are separated by years, but I do know that I never saw a better directed team in the green and gold battle dress than the squad that Fritz sent into action on that frost-bitten grid Saturday afternoon.

Without any hesitating, I say that Bob Fritz is now well on his way to become just as sensational as a coach as he ever was as a player.

But while Fritz's record keeps itself centered on the field, the Golden Bears are not his work alone. It is the first time in his life, The Al-Bertans have a large part of the credit of coaching by Dr. Bill Broadfoot, as showed and able a crack general as you will find in these parts. If Fritz has built a sensational coach, Dr. Broadfoot has put a team in front of it that is tough enough to throw out of Alberta's provincial division for a year.

In three two months, the University of Alberta has ability to a rare degree. If they can only be retained and given a chance, some great football history will be made by the Golden Bears.

Alberta Girls Get Credit for Records

CALGARY, Nov. 4.—(CP)—Ten records in provincial women's track and field competition were accepted by the Alberta branch of the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation in session here Saturday.

Frances Fries of Edmonton was credited with two marks in open competition while 22 other records were set in the various events. Miss Fries' record was a 100-yard dash in 17.4 seconds, a 200-yard dash in 36.4 seconds, a 400-yard dash in 1:14.4, a 600-yard dash in 1:54.4, a 800-yard dash in 2:34.4, a 1000-yard dash in 3:14.4, a MISSING U.S. AIRLINE PLANE NOW LOCATED

Searchers Spot Airplane Grounded in Mountain Country

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 4.—(AP)—A missing United Airlines plane with 10 aboard was located today on the ground in the mountains near the town of Centerville, 10 miles north of Salt Lake City.

Centerville lies at the foot of the towering Wasatch mountains. The plane was sighted by searchers here. They radioed to the Salt Lake airport that the plane did not appear to be in bad condition. The pilot, Captain Howard Key, apparently attempted a forced landing. The transport disappeared during the morning hours of Sunday.

Ground parties started for the wreck, described as approximately six miles east and two miles north of Centerville, 10 miles north of Salt Lake City.

William Hays, United Airlines plane, said his hanging clouds appeared to be whirling clouds. He said the plane was in a canyon on the south side of 7,000 foot Mount Bonifant.

Officials said ground parties would be unable to reach the wreck for several hours due to the heavy snow.

Searchers, in addition to Capt. Key, were First Officer Thomas Anderson of Alameda, Calif., and Steward, Evelyn Sauton, Oakland, Calif.

Passengers were: Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Muir, Detroit; Joe Caserio, Oak; E. A. Dyball, Merritt Falls, Ontario; Mr. and Mrs. L. Wilcox, Maywood, Ill.

In addition the prime minister will deal with Britain's representatives to the Vichy government in order to find out the extent of the Vichy government's collaboration with Germany, particularly in relation to the French navy and naval bases in the Mediterranean and North Africa.

Beyond the laconic announcement that Britain troops have landed in Crete, the British public's eye was drawn to the scale of assistance to Greece. There has been no indication of the strength of the British force or of what the navy and air force are doing.

After the prime minister's speech the House may go into secret session, but this was indefinite tonight.

Dressy Black

There's magic in black. Magic that deceives the eye! It slims you down, lengthens you out—tapers you gracefully into Autumn's needle-narrow silhouette. Small wonder a New York style authority, with whom we keep in close touch, says, "Be a vision of slenderness in BLACK!"

BLACK Dresses

Viewed from any angle, this dress silhouette a new and different sort of elegance. The waist and correspondingly flared at the neckline. Daily wear for the sophisticated "color" and glint in this dress.
